- Supervising 08 PhD Students
- Planned and executed Pharmaceutical research projects to expand body of academic work.
- Supervised work of postgraduate students by assisting with Institutional and supporting research.
- Identified promising students to take on assistantships for research initiatives.

EDUCATION

DECEMBER, 2017

PHD, Pharmaceutical Engineering & Technology, Indian Institute of Technology (BHU) Varanasi, UP-221005

Fellowship received (2012): Pharmacy, Engineering & Technology given by the University Grant Commission, New Delhi.

- I have a good academic background and nurtured the skills of problem solving ability and research project management. I worked on "Design, Optimization and Evaluation of Nano Lipid Carrier (NLC) based Drug Delivery Systems for Tuberculosis." In the Design of Experiment for Screening and Optimization, the selected factors were utilized to establish the formulation. My key findings of the thesis were dose-dependent pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics of Rifabutin, delay in the pharmacological effect.

JUNE, 2009

M. PHARMA (Pharmaceutics), Dr. Abdul Kalam Technical University, Lucknow

"Graduate Aptitude Test for Engineering" (GATE-2004) Qualified, Fellowship Awarded by AICET, New Delhi, India.

- Thesis Title: "Target Oriented Niosome based Delivery of Antitubercular Drug"
- Suitable Isoniazid niosomes were prepared. The niosomes demonstrated a potential to remain in the treated site for prolonged periods and were also capable of maintaining steady drug concentrations for up to 30 h. The developed formulation is capable of reducing drug dose and toxicity as well as dosing frequency, which should bring about improved patient compliance. More importantly, macrophage targeting should be feasible at sites where tuberculosis bacteria are harbored.

SKILLS

- I have skills and proficiency in QbD, (Quality based Design) DoE, (Design of Experiment)
- I do have certification in C-Dac, a Six Sigma black belt from Annexes.
- Cell culture Development.
- Familiar with Microsoft office, Internet Working, Software Installation, Familiar with Statistical Software's (Design Expert 8.0, Minitab 17.0)
